SSL is the Biggest Thing in Hosting in 2017. Are You Prepared?

Why Should I Sell SSL?

With the latest release of Chrome 56, Google is joining other web browsers (such as Mozilla's Firefox) in providing you with a business critical reason to secure your website and online applications.

In January 2017, Google has begun to flag non-secure sites that accept passwords or credit cards with a security alert in the browser - informing users that their data is not protected.

Customer sites with a 'Not secure' warning in the browser will:

- Erode user trust
- Undermine website performance
- Reduce search engine ranking value
